

There are different types of relationships, acquaintances and friends.

Acquaintances are individuals we are loosely associated with. Friends are individuals who we share life with.

We were all made for relationship and relationship is a part of who we were created to be.

If you were to gauge your relationship with God like you do other relationships, do you have an acquaintance with God or a friendship with God?

James 2:18-24

A Friend of God Trusts God

Friends put trust in one another. In the same way, we need put our trust in God.

Are we close enough to God to trust Him?

Even when it requires sacrifice, even requires stepping into the unknown, can we trust God?

A Friend of God Doesn't Have to be Perfect

Abraham wasn't perfect, yet he was called a friend of God.

Are your imperfections keeping you from a relationship with God?

A Friend of God is Like God

Friends share similar characteristics. Having something in common with another person is what makes us likely to be friends.

Do we look like God?

Can others see God in us? Are we exhibiting the fruit of the Spirit?

If we are friends of God, others should see Christ in us!
